I am emailing in regards to the: The Ward Cove dump site consists of toxic sediment trapped under a sand cap that would be churned up by the megaships in Ward Cove, spreading hazardous material contamination that could negatively impact marine life and water quality. Ward Cove is designated as an Essential Fish Habitat for five species of Pacific salmon, as well as herring and halibut.

I am requesting the U.S. Army Corps to further investigate the environmental impacts of the project and conduct a public hearing for community members.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,

Shannon Nelson
