Dear Tom Mayer,

My name is Greg Meyer and my wife is Sylvia Lange. We have 3 children in their late 20's and 30's. My wife and kids are Alaska Natives. We have four family run businesses . We are interested in purchasing the M/V Malaspina.

We would be interested in converting the ferry into a floating hotel/restaurant. We are the owners of The Reluctant Fisherman Inn, a 50 room hotel with an attached bar and full service restaurant that seats 150. We also own 20 acre of waterfront property in the Waterfront Historical District in Cordova, Alaska. The property is the original shipping and ferry terminal for Cordova. We currently have a 155' spud pile driving barge tied up to the existing dock. We are also adjacent to the current ferry terminal in Cordova. In fact, we sold property to the State for the current Ferry facility.

We also own and operate Cordova Construction LLC, a local construction company that would be available to do all the work necessary to secure and maintain the vessel.

We currently own a number for building and houses that are Historic and we do everything we can to preserve the history of Cordova.

I was just made aware of the sale of the Malaspina so I would like to request a little more time to put a more professional proposal in to you.

Attached is a 1945 photo of the he waterfront property we propose to put the M/V Malaspina.

Sincerely,

Greg Meyer
